You Couldn't Expect
Trumanites to Love
Kansas City Star

The Kansas City Star last Tuesday was indicted by a federal grand jury on an anti-trust bill charging that it monopolized news and advertising in the Kansas City area.

Significantly, the announcement was made not in Kansas City but in Washington, and was made personally by Attorney General James P. McGranery, latest of the Truman politicians who have headed the Department of Justice.

The history of Kansas City newspapers — and every journalist knows it by heart — suggests that the reason there is only one publishing company in that city may be found in the character of the papers which competed with the Star rather than any steps which it took to defend itself.

The Kansas City Star was founded by William Rockhill Nelson in the last century, a fighting Indiana editor who made his paper world-famous for crusades against gangsters, fraudulent businessmen, and crooked politicians. Kansas City was a rough town, still is, and for one reason or another the people never had any confidence in the papers that opposed the Star. The only competitor it ever bought was back in 1901, when the morning Times failed and Nelson's paper, published in the evening, picked it up and made it the morning edition.

But in my time the Star had both morning and evening competition, finally merged in a single evening edition, the Kansas City Journal-Post. It was kept up in the early 1920's by a wealthy Kansas City man, a manufacturer named Dickey, and finally was taken over by Henry L. Doherty, the utility magnate who had good reason to dislike the Star. But the spectacle of a public utility king running a people's newspaper was hardly calculated to retard Kansas City's drift toward a one-newspaper town. The Journal-Post folded — and that's the story to date.

The Kansas City case suggests that the government has overlooked the basic fact that it is easier to start a newspaper than to keep one going. Press wires, cartoons, and all the other special services which a newspaper requires, are available for competition in every one-paper town. Here in Hope, for instance, nationally-known wire services are open for three other daily papers, and enough cartoons and features are available to fill a dozen dailies.

And in rich and populous Kansas City it is absurd to suppose that any one publishing outfit can tie up the basic services which enable a paper to start publication. These services are owned and operated by bigger outfits than the Kansas City Star, they are bitterly competitive, and they'd sell anybody who wanted to take the chance.

But the fact that none of the competitors ever made the grade, and the last stand had to be subsidized by a rich manufacturer and a public utility man, suggests that Kansas City has a situation where the politicians and the government could keep a paper going against the Star.

And that may be precisely what the Truman politicians, sweating under editorial criticism in Mr. Truman's own personal neighborhood, aim to prove.

It's rather odd they should have picked on Kansas City, when in Missouri's other metropolis, St. Louis, there has been more recent newspaper action. Years ago the St. Louis Times consolidated with the St. Louis Star, but the Roosevelt-Truman inflation proved too much, and a couple of years ago the Star-Times folded, selling its circulation to the Post-Dispatch. Now St. Louis is down to two newspapers, Globe-Democrat, morning, and Post-Dispatch, evening.

Politicians wouldn't understand this, but their "controlled economy" has increased paper and metal costs 300 per cent since before the war. Politicians talked to that Kansas City grand jury, so the jury indicted the newspaper; but if newspapermen had been doing the talking the jury would probably have indicted the politicians.

Seven Die in Crash of Airliner

SEATTLE (AP) — Off course and afire in a storm, a commercial airliner from California carried seven persons to a flaming death at the foot of a mountain 15 miles east of here last night.

Two of the victims were children and two were women. The three men aboard were crew members.

The four-engine DC-4, owned by the Flying Tiger Airlines of Burbank, Calif., barely missed 1,800-foot Squak Mountain as it wandered about in one of this winter's worst wind and rain storms, apparently seeking Boeing field here.

The witnesses said it appeared to catch fire at an altitude of 500 feet, tumbled down and roared straight into a ploughed field.

Excess Profits Taxes May Be Allowed to Die

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several veterans on the House Ways and Means Committee today predicted that excess profits taxes, now yielding about 2½ billion dollars a year, will be allowed to expire June 30.

But Rep. Eberhart (D-Pa.), a sponsor of the tax, forecast a fight by some Democrats to extend it.

The tax which can run the government's take up to 82 per cent of business profits, was imposed shortly after the Korean War started in mid-1950 to help pay for defense expansion and diminish any war profiteering.

The present law carries an automatic June 30 expiration date. Congress can extend the controversial tax as is, rewrite it or simply let it die.

Chairman Reed (R-N.Y.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, where all tax legislation must start, already has called for "a natural death." He spoke against what he called the laws throttling effect on business, and unfair, arbitrary and discriminatory tax provisions.

Two other veteran Republicans on the committee, representatives Kean (N.J.) and Simpson (Pa.), said in separate interviews today they share a view the tax hurts rather than helps the economy — and will be dropped.

Rep. Martin (R-Ia.) said he was "very strong" for dropping it.

They picked up support from some Democrats. Rep. Mills (D-Ark.), a strong backer of the present law, told a reporter he probably will favor letting it die because of inequities.

Many of the largest corporations, benefiting from defense contracts, are escaping the tax due to special exemptions, while many smaller firms are being penalized, Mills protested.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) said he favors tax relief for "the little men" more than for business, but probably will go along with the move to let the excess profits tax die.

Reed, Simpson and others agreed that individual income tax payers should be given some relief at the same time.

The excess profits tax is piled on top of regular corporate income taxes like this:

The normal tax takes 30 per cent of income up to $25,000; corporation tax takes 22 per cent of all income over $25,000 — a total of 52 per cent; then an additional 30 per cent levy is imposed on income determined to be excess profits.

Actually, no one knows just how many corporations are paying excess profits taxes. A revenue bureau breakdown won't be completed for several months.

The best guess from congressional staff experts is that about 70,000 of roughly 350,000 tax-paying businesses are being tapped under the excess profits provision.

Committee members generally agreed there are inequities in trying to apply the present excess profits levy to all types of businesses, with widely varying operating conditions.

But Eberhart said these inequities should be corrected. He said an effort definitely will be made to extend the law.

Cucumber Growers Asked to Sign Up

Jack Johnson, representative of the Brown & Miller Pickle Company, will be at Rounton & Company store from nine to five, Saturday, January 10, according to information given to the Hope Chamber of Commerce by the Texas-Arkansas firm.

All farmers who produced cucumbers for Brown & Miller last year, are urged to visit with Mr. Johnson and make new contracts for 1953 productions. Old growers have preference of acreage, but if the quota is not met soon by previous producers, new growers will be signed up to make the quota.

There were 750 acres of cucumbers grown in Hempstead County in 1952, and Mr. Johnson says he would like to get that much signed up by the old growers by Saturday so that new acreage can be worked out with new growers.

Prices in 1953 will be the same as 1952 prices and there is a guaranteed market and prices for the contract growers.

One paid worker in three is a woman in Great Britain.

Hope Soldier Is Promoted on Battlefield

WITH THE 2D INFANTRY DIV. IN KOREA — Marion D. Brooks, son of Mrs. Nellie Brooks, 708 Jones St. Hope, Ark., has been promoted to sergeant while serving in Korea with the 2d Infantry Division.

The 2d Division captured "Heartbreak Ridge" in Oct. '51 and took "Old Baldy" last July.

Sgt. Brooks, an aidman, joined the 2d last June and has been awarded the United Nations Service Medal and the Korean Service Ribbon. He entered the Army in January 1952.

Clue Revealed in Memphis Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — A clue in the "mugger" slaying of a 24-year-old former University of Arkansas co-ed, possibly the first break in the case, was flown to the FBI in Washington, D. C., last night.

Police were mum on the nature of the clue that might lead to the bludgeon slayer of Mary McKnight, who came to Memphis from her home in Helena, Ark., three months ago. Police Commissioner Claude Armour said:

"The nature of the clue must be kept secret at this time."

The attractive blonde secretary was the victim of a midnight marauder who slugged her on a darkened street, rifled her purse, and left her lying in a clump of shrubbery, on Jan. 2. She died, two days later.

The death started an around-the-clock search by a corps of 75 city police for the assailant, believed to be responsible for two similar attacks on Memphis residents in recent weeks.

Rewards for the capture of the "mugger" total $4,081.

Commissioner Armour declined to explain how the "clue" came into the possession of the police. He said it was being taken to Washington by Police Capt. H. L. McAden.

Miss McKnight was the daughter of a prominent East Arkansas family. Her father, F. R. McKnight, is the owner of a plywood and veneer manufacturing firm at Helena.

Timely Broiler Practices Discussed

Timely broiler production practices were discussed by W. S. Pollard, Arkansas Extension Poultry Specialist, yesterday with leaders of the Hempstead County broiler growers who produce around 420,000 broilers annually. The discussion took place at the Oscar B. Hodnett farm, J. W. Reilly broiler farm, and the County Extension Service office.

Mr. Pollard advised that poultry now leads all livestock production in Arkansas and is second only to cotton as a source of gross income to farm people. A large part of the growth of the broiler industry has come in the last five years.

Briefly, the broiler management program included the following recommendations:

Build the brooder house on a well-drained area with the floor 10 to 12 inches higher than the ground.

Thoroughly clean and disinfect the house and equipment after each flock of chicks. Never refill a house without a three weeks rest period.

Use an adequate brooding system.

Start with at least four inches of litter on the floor and add more as needed.

Allow not less than three-fourths of a square foot per chick in cool weather and one foot in warm weather.

Provide a minimum of one linear inch of feeder space per chick the first two weeks, two inches the next four weeks, and three inches thereafter.

Feed a little at a time (with feeders not over half full) and feed often.

Allow sufficient ventilation to avoid excessive odor and moisture in the brooder house, but avoid direct draft on the chicks.

Stir the litter as often as necessary and add new litter to avoid "caking." Occasionally add one pound of lime to 15 square feet and one pound of superphosphate per 100 square feet of floor space to control excessive moisture and ammonia fumes.

Keep a close watch over the chicks and be alert for trouble.

Mossadegh Finds Opposition, May Lose Power

TEHRAN, Iran. (UP) — Opposition to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh exploded in parliament today in a dispute that threatens seriously to topple him from power.

The storm arose over the prime minister's demands for a one-year extension of his dictatorial powers.

A powerful religious leader joined a trusted lieutenant in turning against Mossadegh. They are powerful and fanatic Moslem leader Ayatollah said Kashani and popular Hoessein Makki, who has been Mossadegh's right hand man and the "hatchetman" who carried out his oil nationalization program.

Both Kashani, aged and ailing, and Makki threatened to resign from parliament if Mossadegh insists on pressing for an extension of his broad powers.

It was the first genuine threat to the aged Mossadegh's almost undisputed control of the nation since he soared to power following the assassination of Premier Ali Razmarsi in March, 1951.

Makki, who forced the British out of Iran for Mossadegh, threw the Majlis (lower house) into an uproar by submitting his resignation as deputy when the premier's extension measure was introduced.

Later in a special closed session of the chamber a group of deputies asked Makki to withdraw his resignation.

Immediately afterward Makki rushed to the hospital to call on Kashani, who is speaker of the chamber. Kashani declared at the end of the hospital meeting he too would resign if Mossadegh insisted on extension of his special authority.

Kashani, most powerful Moslem religious leader in Iran, has frequently expressed some opposition to Mossadegh but this was the strongest open clash so far between the two old, ailing men.

Mineral Springs Charge Gets a New Pastor

Appointment of the Rev. Woodrow W. Smith to the Methodist churches of the Mineral Springs charge has been announced by Bishop Paul E. Martin.

Rev. Smith is a recent graduate of Southern Methodist University. His parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Jeff Smith, reside in Little Rock, where his father is superintendent of The Light House for the Blind. The Mineral Springs charge is in the Hope district of the Little Rock Conference.

A Big Problem of This World Is How to Keep From Yawning While Being Entertained

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the big problems of this wonder-filled modern world is to keep from yawning while you are being entertained.

That is the pitiful plight of a pampered people in a time of plenty — too many are being entertained into boredom. They become depressed while trying to enjoy themselves.

"No previous age in history ever surrounded itself with more gadgets to give fun, pleasure or relief from care. Yet how often do you hear someone say:

"I feel restless — nothing to do."

There are, of course, plenty of things to do. Such a person simply hasn't found them. He is just weary of going to parties to see people he doesn't want to meet. He is sick of listening to thrilling radio programs that don't thrill him, tired of holding up the dull book someone told him you simply can't lay down.

He is fatigued with the dull parade of nonsensical murder mysteries and repetitious comedians on his television screen. And he thinks the penalty of having to sit through another hackneyed plot at the movies is too much to pay just for a chance to eat a sack of popcorn in comfort.

The real trouble is he has become too much a victim of herd forms of entertainment — the mass quest for fun sitting down as a spectator watching somebody else do something.

This is hard on his eyes, his ears, his posture. It is also against the animal part of his nature. A dog gets bored sitting indoors watching the antics of people. So does a human being. But while a dog will fall asleep rather than watch a dull television program, a man has less wisdom. He will sit and stare at it, getting more and more restless and exasperated, until his eyeballs ache.

When he does go to bed, he finds it hard to go to sleep. Why? Because, instead of being entertained, he has been annoyed. He is annoyed because he knows he has wasted his time, and time is his greatest treasure, a thing all men know in their hearts.

Real entertainment — and all great art — should first of all be exhilarating, then relaxing. But poor entertainment has the opposite effect. It first depresses you, then leaves you tense with dissatisfaction.

The funny thing about fun is that it is best when it is spontaneous, rather than contrived. You can get more laughs out of watching a comical child for 10 minutes than from an hour spent listening to the yuck-yuck wisecracks of a $2,000-a-week slapstick artist.

There is as much genuine satisfaction in painting a picture yourself, no matter how badly it turns out, as in trudging through a gallery of old masters.

Revenue Offices Extend Hours to Aid Taxpayers

Oliver S. Goodwin, Director of Internal Revenue, today announced that the following offices of the Bureau of Internal Revenue will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, January 10, to assist the public in the preparation and filing of their 1952 income tax returns:

Hope, Ark. and Texarkana.

If further arrangements are made to keep the offices open on other Saturdays between now and March 15th, the deadline for filing income tax returns, in order to serve the public, such announcement will be made later through the newspapers.

Anti-Filibuster Group Claims Some Benefits

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate anti-filibuster leaders today claimed some benefits from their opening-session fight despite overwhelming defeat by a combination of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

But they made clear they were thinking of ultimate victory in another Congress and not counting on Republican promises of attempts later this year to make it easier to choke off filibusters.

Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) told a reporter, however, that as chairman of the Senate Rules Committee he would work for early Senate action on a resolution he introduced to modify present requirements for limiting debate.

Any such attempt was given little if any chance of success by the senators who battled in vain to persuade the Senate to start off the new GOP-controlled Congress with a revised set of rules.

Sen. Neely (D-WVa.) said President-elect Eisenhower was "the only man on earth" who could bring it about and appealed to him to call on GOP senators "to go down the line" for a change in Senate rules so that a majority would be able to enact civil rights measures.

Just after Neely injected Eisenhower's name into the debate, the Senate voted 70-21 to kill the anti-filibuster effort initiated by the bipartisan group of 19 senators.

U. S. Bond Sales Total $59,330

Sales of U. S. Savings Bonds during the month of November, 1952 in Hempstead County totaled $59,330. E & H sales amounted to $9,510; J Bond sales totaled $4,920 while K bonds brought in $45,500.

Diplomats Generally Agreed Truman's Blunt Warning May Put Brakes on Soviet Plans

LONDON (UP) — The British press today gave its biggest headlines to President Truman's state-of-the-union message and huddled him an editorial farewell that for the most part was warm.

Most newspapers seemed agreed that from Europe's standpoint the President's eight-year term brought gains.

"Many millions of citizens in the old world can reflect on the state of their own respective nations with the feeling that things have turned out a little less badly — perhaps much less less badly — than was to be expected," said the Conservative Daily Telegraph.

The Daily Mail said that "the free world owes much to this little man with the infectious grin and the lion heart," and called the President's warning to Russia "his last big speech, and his best."

Council Asks More Salary for Thompson

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative Council today voluntarily recommended a salary increase for the incoming State Revenue Commissioner Horace E. Thompson.

It was the second time the Council, which often slashes budget requests, in effect, told the Revenue Department that it wasn't asking enough money.

After the salary proposed for Thompson had been raised from $7,500 to $8,500 the Council approved a revised proposed budget of $1,796,000 for each of the next two fiscal years.

In reply to a question, Thompson told the Council that he had accepted the appointment from Gov.-elect Cherry with the understanding that his salary would be $7,500 and that he was not asking any more.

He agreed that it wouldn't make him "unhappy" if the salary were increased.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov.-elect Francis Cherry's new Public Service Commission today presented to the Arkansas Legislative Council the revised budget calling for an increase of $125,125 per year in its appropriation.

Lewis E. Robinson of Pine Bluff, new PSC chairman, and the man who wrote the bill that set up the PSC in 1935, P. A. Lasley, appeared in behalf of the budget.

Officers Are Stymied in Head Search

DES ARC (AP) — Law officers today appeared stalemated in their search for James W. Head.

Head, who has been charged with first degree murder in the death of 5-year-old Mary Wolfe, disappeared from his farm home here Dec. 20.

Shirley E. O. Hamilton said he had received no new clues in the whereabouts of Head. State Police and the FBI likewise had nothing to report.

Hamilton said Everett Wolfe, father of the girl whose beaten body was found submerged in a make-shift water tank left here last night for his Detroit, Mich., home after viewing his daughter's grave.

Hamilton said Wolfe appeared stunned during his visit here yesterday, describing him as "like a man in a dream."

The sheriff said Wolfe talked with Head's wife, Linda, who is in jail here. She, too, has been charged with first degree murder in the child's death.

Hamilton said Mrs. Head repeated her story of Mary's death for Wolfe and said her "high tempered" husband had mistreated the child on occasions.

"I whipped Mary three or four times," the sheriff quoted the foster mother as telling Wolfe. "but I never hurt her."

The Head's daughter, 2-year-old Virginia, is being cared for in a foster home at Little Rock.

Tito Confers With Vatican Officials

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP) — Marshal Tito, who broke off diplomatic relations with the Vatican over the elevation of Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac to the rank of cardinal, today held a "peace conference" with seven top-ranking Yugoslav Catholic prelates.

Tito received the seven — excluding Stepinac — to discuss a possible church-state agreement.

The relations of the Yugoslav government and the Vatican have been embittered by the arrest and the Vatican have been embittered by the arrest and imprisonment of Stepinac on charges of wartime collaboration with the Nazis. He was released from prison under Vatican and world Catholic pressure but remains under "restraints" which the Vatican charges prevent the discharge of his priestly duties.

Following the break in diplomatic relations with the Vatican, Tito said he believed that act had paved the way for improved relations between Yugoslav Catholics and his government.

There already has been an indication of improved relations between Tito's government and the Orthodox Church of Yugoslavia.

Today's conference with Catholic prelates was believed intended by Tito as an attempt to heal the breach between church and state that developed from the arrest and imprisonment of Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac, recently designated a cardinal.

The plane, one of a pair of C-47's owned by the Associated Air Transport Co., San Antonio, Texas, was part of a 15-ship flight the Army chartered to airlift Korean veterans homeward. Loaded alpha-battalion, all those aboard had names starting with "H" or "J" or "K."

Pilot Lawrence Crawford checked in with the CAA ground station at 3:58 a.m. while flying at 13,000 feet over Maud City in southeastern Idaho. All was well, he said, and the next report was to be made an hour later over Rock Springs, Wyo. It was the craft's last message.

Residents of shore homes around Bear Lake, on the Utah-Idaho border and only a few miles from Wyoming, said the low-flying plane they heard between 4:30 and 5 a. m. apparently was circling, shook houses with its roar, and awakened a few sleepers, then dived on to the east.

Plans for the next meeting which will feature a guest speaker from Little Rock, will be announced.

Billy Gentry to Preach Here Sunday

The Rev. V. D. Koeley today announced that Billy Gentry, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Gentry, is a candidate for the Methodist Ministry and will preach his first sermon at the First Methodist Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

Mr. Koeley urges Billy's relatives and friends to attend this service. Young Gentry plans to become a ministerial student at Hendrix College next year.

Increased Performance in New Chevrolets

The low, sweeping lines of the 1953 Chevrolets are exemplified by this four-door sedan in the "Two-Ten" series, which this year offers increased performance, comfort and convenience in addition to a complete re-design. Apparent in this view are the enlarged front and rear vision, new fender and hood contours and a fresh grille treatment that enhance the rugged beauty of the cars. Four-door sedans are also available in the "One-Fifty" and the new Bel Air series.

Chevrolet Adds New Car Series

Expanded to include a third series of cars, and boasting more significant advances than ever incorporated in a model in the low-price field, the widely discussed new Chevrolets make their first public appearance at dealer showrooms tomorrow (January 9), in Hope at Young Chevrolet Co.

For the 1953 market bodies have been completely re-designed. All cars have increased power, with special emphasis on a new power train that includes a new engine and improved automatic transmission. In performance, in economy, in driving and riding qualities, exterior and interior appointments, the latest Chevrolet models contribute importantly to automotive progress.

In appearance the latest Chevrolets combine the smooth flow of the streamline with utilitarian design. Overall, the cars are low, but with an increase in headroom and legroom. The top of the bodies has been broadened to provide additional width while hood and trunk lines are more pronounced. Fender shapes, both front and rear, make the cars appear longer, although overall they are actually two inches shorter than last year's models. The new length is a consequence to parking ease with the more compact bump design reducing the "overhang" from fenders. Wheelbase remains the same.

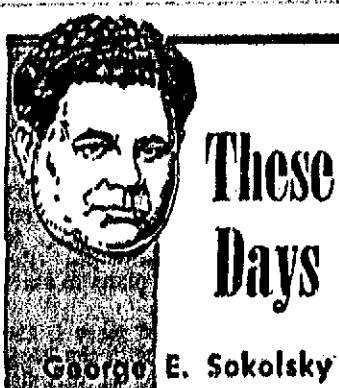

A fresh grille treatment enhances the effect of ruggedness in the new models. Three vertical "prop bars" separate the center grille with the outer rim of the grille structure. Small parking lamps, headlights are embedded in the front fenders with the design being extended into a speed bump design at the rear. Higher and narrower at the rear, along the trailing edge are mounted lenses for turning, braking, backup and tail lights.

For 1953 Chevrolet will offer 10 passenger car bodies in its three distinct series. The Bel Air series includes two- and four-door sedans, coupes and convertibles. The "Two-Ten" comes in two- and four-door sedans, club and sport coupes, convertible and Townsman and Handyman station wagons available in the "One-Fifty" series are two- and four-door sedans, coupes and sport coupes and the Handyman station wagon.

THE TAFT LEADERSHIP

The unanimous election of Senator Robert A. Taft as Floor Leader of the Republican Party should put an end to the rumors, reports, guesses and prognostications of antipathy between Mr. Republican and Mr. President. Taft and Eisenhower have got along remarkably well, considering that they are both strong men with developed and mature points of view.

Taft's leadership within the Republican Party cannot be questioned. It has been acknowledged time after time by his colleagues in the Senate and House of Representatives. It is important to recall that he was defeated in his candidacy for the Presidency not because he was regarded as unsuited but because it was assumed that he could not be elected. Daniel Webster and Henry Clay suffered from the same assumption without any question as to their ability.

The task of the Floor Leader is to carry through to success the legislative program of his party. When that party has an incumbent in the White House, the legislative program is composed by the President and his Cabinet as well as by members of the Congress. The Floor Leader, in those circumstances, has to reconcile differences which are inevitable in our form of government.

In the British system, the legislative program of the Prime Minister and his cabinet is the platform of the party in power and is rarely contested by members of Parliament of that party. The Prime Minister sits in Parliament and is actually the floor leader.

In the United States, this system does not prevail. Each member of the Senate or the House is elected by his own constituency. He is not obligated to follow the President or the Floor Leader. The President holds the whip of patronage; the Floor Leader depends upon parliamentary skill and personal prestige.

Since 1937, our Congress has been in revolt against the growing power of the President. From 1939 to 1947, Franklin D. Roosevelt was able to use Congress as though he were a British Prime Minister. He sent to Congress "must" legislation, prepared not by the committees of Congress but by his own staff. Ben J. Cohen. For instance, the National Labor Relations Act was not prepared by Senator Wagner, whose name it bears, but by a group of young lawyers, headed by Lee Pressman, a Communist. The Court Packing Bill brought that era to an end. The Congress rebelled, rescinded the President and defeating the bill.

Since then, Congress has been seeking ways to enforce the separation of powers in accordance with the Constitution. Roosevelt's Quarantine Speech in 1937 created a revolt against the appointment of Hugo Black to the Supreme Court. Since then foreign affairs, including the major war of our history, have absorbed the attention of Congress and strengthened the Executive.

Nevertheless, Harry Truman found that no Congress would work with him on his own terms. Only one of his Congresses, the 80th, was Republican; yet, it is a fact that Truman failed to find the 79th, 81st and 82nd Congresses cooperative with the President's conception of his office. In fact, Truman conceived the doctrine that the Presidency possessed inherent powers, a concept that went to court and was duly thrown out by Judge David Pine in a leading decision.

The powers of the President, according to the Constitution, are few and limited. Most of the powers of the President are legislated by Congress, either in the form of mandatory functions designated to Executive departments or delegated to the President by Congress from its own Constitutional authority. No act of Congress is permanent in the sense that a provision of the Constitution is permanent. An act of one Congress may be amended or rescinded by another.

During the Truman Administration Congress has been step by step recapturing its authority from the Executive. The Democrats have taken the lead in this. Many of the investigations instituted by Democratic Senators and Representatives, while perhaps not designed to weaken the Executive branch of government, have served to restore the constitutional rights of Congress.

The leadership of Robert A. Taft in the Senate will have the political effect of strengthening the Eisenhower Administration. A President is only as competent as he is served. No man can carry the whole load himself.

When the President's relations with Congress are proper, the government runs smoothly. If either side usurps the authority of the other, confusion sets in.

Star Confident of Beating U. S. Suit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Star said today it was confident of vindication on government charges it violated the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

A federal grand jury yesterday returned a two-count indictment against the Kansas City Star Company, its president, Roy A. Roberts, and Advertising Director Emil A. Sees.

The indictment accused the newspaper of monopolistic practices.

Shortly after the indictment was returned, the government filed a civil anti-trust action against the Star in U. S. District Court. The civil suit seeks to enjoin the company from continuation of the alleged violations.

The court also was asked to revoke the radio and television licenses of WDAF and WDAF-TV, which are owned by the Kansas City Star Company.

Roberts, speaking for the management, said in a front-page statement:

"The Star will look with complete confidence to courts and the jury for vindication on the charges brought by the government yesterday in both the complaint in the civil suit and the indictment for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act. Our business practices, covering nearly three-quarters of a century, have been an open book, still are, and conform to the law and good morals.

"The Star will meet the charges headon. The most precious thing a newspaper possesses is its integrity, the confidence of its readers and community. There will be no effort of any kind to quash or delay the anti-trust indictment."

The indictment stated that the effect of the Star's alleged violations resulted in excluding all others from the daily newspaper field in Kansas City, Mo.

It also said the alleged practices deprived advertisers of the opportunity to advertise in the Star while using other advertising mediams, deprived advertisers of the opportunity of freely selecting other mediums, compelled advertisers to pay for advertising they did not want and compelled subscribers to purchase papers they did not want.

Roberts said the basic theory underlying both the indictment and the civil complaint "is that the Star has attempted to create a monopoly in this territory. Anybody with the slightest knowledge of business knows that the greatest factor in forcing consolidations and the involuntary discontinuance of newspapers, which is all very regrettable, is the government itself."

"The tax burden has become so terrific only the strongest papers can stand up under it. Newspapers have had to increase both subscription and advertising rates in a mad race to keep up with costs.

"As rates go up advertisers necessarily concentrate their spending in the papers that do the best jobs for them. All the anti-trust suits in the world will not stop this trend unless the government can get taxes down."

In Washington, Atty. Gen. James

P. McGranery said the action was another in the government's series of cases "to restore to businessmen the right to advertise freely in media of their own choosing."

He added: "Illegal and unfair practices that destroy competition in the newspaper field must be eliminated if we are to continue to depend upon a free press as the bulwark of our political as well as our economic freedom."

Gardenia Garden Club
Has Meeting Wednesday

The Gardenia Garden Club met Wednesday afternoon, January 7, at 2:30 in the home of Mrs. C. C. Lewis with Mrs. Frank Rider as associate hostess.

Mrs. Lewis, president, opened the meeting by reading the club creed and presided over the business session.

As secretary, Mrs. Leonard Ellis called the roll and each member answered by naming their favorite bird.

During the business meeting, the club decided to have as their project, the Massingill Rest Home. The club also voted to donate five dollars to the March of Dimes fund.

Mrs. Gus Haynes, program leader, used as her subject "Birds." A contest on birds followed the program.

The hostesses served a dessert plate to 17 members present. Mrs. J. C. Carlton, an honorary member, was also present.

Mrs. Jesse Samuel Hostess to DeAnn Lilac Garden Club

The DeAnn Lilac Garden Club met December 10 in the home of Mrs. Jesse Samuel.

Each member received a gift of the lighted Christmas tree. Game prizes were won by Mrs. Eulas Burke and Mrs. Richard Arnold.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Samuel's daughters.

The January meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Hollis Samuel.

Arkansas Hog Producers Down in Dumps

By HAROLD HART

LITTLE ROCK — Arkansas hog producers are down in the dumps. And with good reason.

Howard G. Ford, swine and meats specialists with the Agricultural Extension Service, says many hog raisers in the state are so disconsolate over dwindling price of pork that they are considering getting out of the business.

A series of events, notably a tremendous supply of hogs during 1952, has been a particularly responsible factor for the present low prices, says Ford. He adds, however, that it's doubtful that all those things that depressed the market last year will happen together again in 1953.

Despite the dark hog situation, Ford advises producers to "do some thinking" before going out of business.

Ford reasons this way: "Hogs are at the low end of a cycle. Usually after a year of heavy marketings the price rises. The farm who can ride out this low period, keeping some good gilts to farrow this spring, should be in good shape by this fall."

The American consumer would have been faced with shortages of beef and leather had it not been for cattle raisers stepping up production and practicing orderly marketing procedure.

That opinion comes from Irving R. Glass, executive vice president of the Tanners' Council of America.

In a speech at Kansas City early in the week, Glass said the shortages were threatened by the increase of consumers' income and the desire of the American housewife for roast beef and genuine leather articles. That supply situation might have gotten out of hand, says Glass, and resulted in higher prices for beef and leather were it not for the "heroic" efforts of the cattle industry.

Change is a slow process, but the long summer drought forced Arkansas farmers to do something about their winter feed program and do it quick.

Frank Zinser of Perry County made the transition without breaking his stride, County Agent Deluel with Mrs. Leroy Samuel as co-hostess.

Liberty Hill
Mrs. J. L. Light was hostess to the Liberty Hill Home Demonstration Club at her home Friday afternoon. The first Friday in each month has been set as the regular club meeting date.

During the afternoon a quilt was quilted and given to Mrs. Charlie Huckabee whose home was recently destroyed by fire.

The president, Mrs. E. H. Byers, presided over the business session. Mrs. Clyde Huckabee, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report. After roll call a project for the year was discussed. One dollar and twenty cents was paid for the new year books that were received by all present.

Mrs. Light served fruit cake and hot chocolate to ten members and one guest, Miss Carrie Williams. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Clyde Huckabee on February 6.

Evening Shade HD Club had a quilting party at the home of Mrs. Paris Anderson on New Year's Day. The quilts were given to Mrs. Charlie Anderson whose home was destroyed by fire.

Three quilts were made and Mrs. Huckabee received many other useful gifts.

A pot luck lunch was served to 21 members and friends. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Robert White on Highway 29 south, January 9.

Churchill and Truman to Hold Conference

New YORK — British Prime Minister Winston Churchill left plane to confer with President Truman today after private talks with President-elect Eisenhower which probably forecast the Anglo-American approach to world problems.

Churchill took off from Lattin, Ireland, at 11:22 a. m. His American host, Bernard M. Baruch, accompanied him to the airport and waved good-bye.

Baruch will confer with Eisenhower later today at the general's headquarters at the Hotel Commodore.

Churchill's daughter, Mrs. Sarah Churchill Beachamp and British officials accompanied the prime minister in a motorcade to the airport.

Tonight Churchill will entertain President Truman at the British embassy. Tomorrow he will fly to the British West Indies to meet his family and stay on for a two-week vacation.

Before a pre-dinner party last night with Churchill, Eisenhower put in a full day's work at his Hotel Commodore headquarters.

He named John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, as assistant secretary of defense in charge of manpower and personnel. Hannah will succeed Mrs. Anna Rosenberg.

There were published reports today that Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, now director of the Central Intelligence Agency under President Truman, will be named undersecretary of state in the new administration.

Neither officials at Eisenhower's headquarters nor Smith, reached by telephone in Washington, would comment.

Small Tornado Hits Near Warren

WARREN, Ark. — A Rural Electrification Administration official said a small tornado hit Macedonia 12 miles north of here, early today, destroying four houses and injuring two Negroes, neither seriously.

Names of the victims were not available.

Morris Johnson of the REA said utility lines in the area were blown down, but service had been restored.

Macedonia, a small community in south central Arkansas, is population 100.

Efforts Fail to End Bus Strike

NEW YORK — City Hall efforts to settle the eight-day-old bus strike were reported "hopelessly deadlocked" today.

A battle of words between Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri and City Council President Rudolph Halley highlighted the animosity over the walkout on eight private systems which normally carry 2,300,000 fares a day.

Victor S. Riesenfeld, chairman of the mayor's special mediation committee, and Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union, (TWU), agreed negotiations were deadlocked.

There was no hopeful sign of settlement of the wage-hour dispute as the mediation committee adjourned indefinitely yesterday.

Riesenfeld said the two-man committee would reconvene if any one had "anything constructive to offer."

The term "tank" to designate an armored vehicle was first used by the British in 1915 when they sought to conceal the nature of the new weapon they planned to use.

Council Wants P. B. Mayor to Resign

PINE BLUFF, Ark. — The Pine Bluff Commercial said today eight aldermen, comprising the City Council, met Sunday morning and asked for the resignation of Mayor George Steed.

The newspaper said the councilmen had agreed to keep their action secret for "the good of the city."

The aldermen met as individuals and not as a Council session, the paper said. City ordinance makes it illegal for the City Council to meet on Sunday.

Marilyn Did All Right With the Name

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Five years ago, Marilyn Maxwell tossed a Christmas Eve party at her Hollywood apartment. Among those present was another blonde, lovely and uninvited.

Miss Maxwell met the girl and was struck by the similarity of their names. "Is that your real name?" she asked.

"Yes," replied the blonde. "And do you plan to go into the movies?"

"I certainly hope so," replied the girl. "You'd better change your name then. It might be confusing."

The other blonde, who was a Hollywood blonde, didn't change her professional name. She still calls herself Marilyn Maxwell. She is much better known now, thanks to a well-placed, colorful pose, among other things.

And, as her hostess predicted, five years ago, the confusion between Marilyn Maxwell and Marilyn Monroe was considerable.

"I was the only Marilyn in the business until she came along," said Miss Maxwell. "I suppose she is subject to the same confusion, but people often call me inadvertently Miss Monroe. My answer is: No, like things kept within the bounds of decency."

Alpha Omicron Chapter of EBA, met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. V. McMahon for the monthly social meeting.

The room was attractively decorated with potted plants.

Bridge and canasta were played. A dainty salad course was served.

Guests were: Mrs. Carl Dalrymple, Mrs. J. B. Franks, Mrs. R. F. Yarborough, Mrs. Bob Reynolds, Mrs. C. R. Gray, and Mrs. Gene Hale.

Bridal Couple Given Dinner

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Pollock of Oklahoma City, Okla., entertained with a rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at the Hotel Lawson, honoring Miss Sue Jones, bride-elect of their son, Dr. Harold B. Pollock, and their wedding party.

An arrangement of white carnations, stock and pink roses, flanked by glowing white tapers in three branched candelabra centered the table.

Miss Jones' place was marked with a gardenia corsage.

The couple presented their attendants with gifts. Covers were laid for twenty-three guests.

After the meeting was adjourned, delicious refreshments were served from a beautiful table decorated in green, yellow and white. Order colors for the year Mrs. Martindale presided at the serving table.

Eastern Star Holds Installation Services

Prescott chapter No. 153, Order of the Eastern Star, held open installation services at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening, in a most impressive ceremony.

Installing officers for the evening were: Mrs. Rachel Jordan, installing officer, Mrs. Edna Cashman, installing matron, Mrs. Edna Thompson, installing chaplain, Mrs. Marceline McMahon, installing organist.

Officers installed for the year of 1953 were:

Evelyn Martindale, worthy matron, N. N. Daniel, worthy patron, Ethel Lynch, associate matron, Edna Cashman, secretary, Rachel O. Jordan, treasurer, Elberta Wells, conductress, Dottie Strickland, associate conductress, Merle Tunnell, marshal, Lena Black, organist, Ruth Ward, Adah, Maudea K. Kosky, Ruth, Ora Ditty, Esther, Helen Harrison, Martha, Marie Ritten, Elberta, Josephine Barger, warden, Jimmie Brock, sentinel.

Brs. George Teal, who had been elected associate matron and Sister Dorothy Nelson were unable to attend installation due to illness and will be installed later.

Worthy Patron Evelyn Martindale gave an interesting and inspiring address after which several members and visitors gave short talks.

Miss Sue Kelsey, accompanied by Mrs. McMahon, rendered a vocal solo, Star of the East and Miss Betty Jean Knight played a waltz number on the piano.

Ushers for the evening were Misses Belva Jo Langston and Patricia Lynch.

After the meeting was adjourned, delicious refreshments were served from a beautiful table decorated in green, yellow and white. Order colors for the year Mrs. Martindale presided at the serving table.

Jones-Pollock Vows Pledges

In a lovely ceremony on Sunday, January 4, at 4 o'clock in the First Methodist Church of Prescott, Miss Vada Sue Jones was united in marriage to Dr. Harold Raymond Pollock. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jones of Prescott. Mr. Pollock is the son of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Pollock of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mr. Earl E. Smith read the double ring ceremony before an altar enhanced by floor baskets of white stock and gladioli and white tapers in graduated candelabra. Another candelabra lighted the altar rail. Southern snail and palm leaves decorated the altar rail and choir rail. Pewes were tucked with snail and white satin ribbons.

Miss Nona Katherine Eagle of Prescott, organist, provided traditional nuptial music and accompanied Miss Miriam Jones of Pine Bluff, cousin of the bride, who sang "At Dawning" and "Always". Miss Jones also sang "The Lord's Prayer" softly as the couple knelt for their blessing.

Tapers were lighted by Don Smith and Milton Humphrey of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

The bride who entered on the arm of her father was radiantly lovely in her gown of imported chintilly lace and nylon tulle, fashioned with bodice of the lace, scalloped neckline and fitted sleeves which came to the wrist. The cascade lace peplum fell over the bouffant nylon skirt over shimmering satin. Her finger tip veil of French illusion was caught to a crown of lace and seed pearls. She carried a white satin Bible covered with lace and topped with an orchid and lilies of the valley with a shower of white satin ribbons and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Tom Cochran of New Orleans, La., the bride's only attendant wore a gown of American Beauty net and tulle. The bodice was of tulle, with yoke of lace and a bouffant skirt of net. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of Better Times carnations with matching satin ribbon.

Dr. Albert D. Bird of Childress, Texas, served the groom as best man. Ushers were Arthur Houser, Milton Humphrey, Don Smith of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma and Richard Bright of Prescott.

A reception in the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Pearl Jones, aunt of the bride, greeted the guests.

White stock and gladioli were used in the living room and gift room.

Receiving were the bride's mother, who wore a gown of tulle crepe with tulle and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Pollock's dress was pale blue silk and she pinned an orchid at her shoulder. The bride and groom and Mrs. Cochran.

Miss Janelle Webb of Camden had charge of the bride's train.

The bride's table was decorated with a cutwork cloth, held a three tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom and encircled by greenery. White tapers burned in three branched crystal candelabra. Mrs. Donat Casvannah served the cake and Mrs. Robert Archer, of El Dorado, presided at the punch bowl. Little Miss Joanne Pollock, cousin of the bride and groom and Little Miss Sarah Janet Bryson, Mrs. Sartis Greer, Mrs. Ora Wells, and Mrs. Claude Vandiver of Muskogee, Oklahoma, assisted in courtesies.

Mrs. L. J. Bryson invited the guests into the gift room.

For travel the bride chose a suit and groom a suit with black accessories and planned an orchid at her shoulder.

Committee to Study Highway Budget

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A special committee of the Arkansas Legislative Council and Governor-elect Francis Cherry's Highway Commission will study a $4.5 million dollar biennial budget proposed by the Highway Department.

The committee was set up yesterday as the full Council again declined to take final action to accept recommending a highway appropriation to the 1953 Legislature, which convenes next week.

Miss Willie Lawson of Little Rock, a member of the Highway Commission designated by Cherry, said a meeting of the two groups would be arranged as soon as possible.

The committee will present its report to the Joint Budget Committee of the General Assembly. The Council completes its pre-legislative session work this week.

The Council's committee members named include: Sen. Lee Gledhill of Leachville, chairman; Rep. James R. Campbell of Garland; Representative Warren Trussell of Dallas; Rep. Robert Harvey of Jackson; Sen. Fred Tom Allen of Brinkley; Rep. Paul Van Dusen of Perry; and Rep. Charles F. Smith of Crittenden.

Forty-six million dollars of the suggested budget is slated for highway construction during the next two years. Chief Highway Engineer Alf E. Johnson told the council that the amounts include $4 million dollars of anticipated aid.

Maintenance in the new budget was set at nine million dollars for the first year and 9.5 millions for the second.

Acheson's Swan Song Is Near an End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson's swan song to America's career diplomats was a fighting exhortation to stand fast in the face of "wicked" criticisms and "witchhunts."

Acheson was guest of honor at a luncheon meeting yesterday of the Foreign Service Association, a dues-paying organization of State Department career officers.

Without naming names, he assailed critics of the State Department as "thoroughly wicked" and said their campaign of abuse and witchhunts compares with what Italy experienced in the Middle Ages.

Acheson forecast no letup in will reside in Dallas.

Out of town guests were Tom Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phillips, of Memphis, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. George H. Spencer Jr., of Pine Bluff, Mrs. Arthur Houser, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Huber, Mrs. Don Smith, Mrs. Milton Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Pollock, Jo Ann and Allen, Mrs. D. K. Stockton, of Oklahoma City, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Wesley A. Goldfarb of Memphis, Tenn., Mrs. Opal Webb, Mr. Al Rose, Camden, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Crow of Little Rock, Mr. Bob Archer of El Dorado, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones of Smackover, Mrs. Ethel Stone of Smackover, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Morgan, Lubbock, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Burton and Charles of Garden, Mr. Claude Vandiver, Muskogee, Okla.

Acheson applauded career diplomats as excellent dedicated public servants. He said they must offer "just criticism" without bitterness — "the way wickedness has always been faced from the beginning of time."

Reporters were barred from the meeting, held at the National Press Club Auditorium, but they were able to overhear Acheson's remarks. Officials asked newsmen not to publish them, saying they were off the record.

Says Woman Insane at Time of Slaying

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
TOKYO — The U. S. Army's chief psychiatrist expressed belief today that Dorothy Eugene Smith, daughter of a famed World War I general, was temporarily insane when her husband was killed.

Brig. Gen. Rowley E. Chambers, who came by plane from Washington to testify in the court martial trial of the 40-year-old mother of two, was one of the chief defense witnesses.

The prosecution rested its case yesterday. Mrs. Smith is charged with fatally stabbing her husband, Col. Aubrey Smith, chief of plans and operations of the Far East command's logistics supply section, Oct. 3.

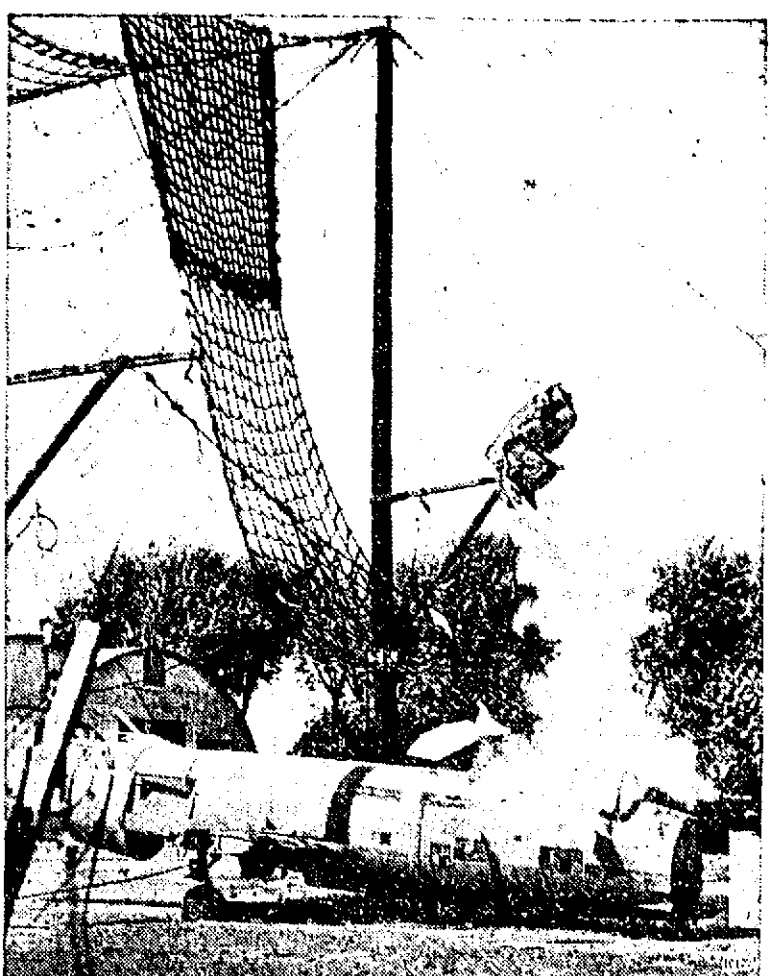

Chambers testified that Mrs. Smith apparently was able to tell right from wrong on the night of the slaying, but he added:

"I do not believe she had any ability whatsoever to adhere to the right at the time."

Chambers pictured Mrs. Smith as an emotionally unstable woman, addicted to barbiturates. He said she had strong feelings of insecurity, powerful internal conflicts and depressed tensions.

The court recessed until tomorrow. There was a possibility the case may go before the court tomorrow afternoon for a verdict. Chambers was the last defense witness.

He said that while under the influence of alcohol, barbiturates or other sedatives, "she had committed socially unacceptable behavior."

TESTING A JET PLANE SEAT EJECTOR—Because jet pilots have been unable to jettison their canopies to operate their ejection seats, the Bureau of Aeronautics in Philadelphia, Pa., is conducting tests to see if it is feasible to fire the pilot through the plexiglas canopy. To make the tests the research organization uses a dummy, shown above, and a net to catch it.

She is so out of control that if someone said, 'Is it wrong to kill?' — she might say 'Yes' and go ahead and kill."

Chambers was Mrs. Smith's physician in San Antonio, Tex., from 1948 until she came to Japan in 1952.

The Army's court martial manual says that to be legally responsible for a crime, a person must know right from wrong at the time the crime is committed and must be able to "adhere" to the right.

An Army medical board decided, after examining Mrs. Smith in October, that she was legally sane. She is charged with premeditated murder. Penalty for conviction would be the death sentence or

Purge of Jews Starts in West Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Jewish informants in West Berlin report the Communists who control East Germany have started purging Jews from public office and have jailed a number of them. Some have fled to the West to escape the new wave of persecutions.

The informants said yesterday the full scale drive against the East zone's 2,700 Jews was ordered by the Kremlin. The action extends to Jews holding minor jobs in the nationalized economy and in community cultural affairs.

In most cases, the report said, those purged are sent to prison or demoted to subordinate jobs, where they are without any influence. The new order also prohibits Jews from joining the Communist people's police — but this was looked upon as a blessing in disguise.

The sweep in East Germany came in the wake of a recent anti-Jewish purge trial in neighboring Red Czechoslovakia and followed extensive interrogation of all Jewish office holders.

Among the Jews who fled before the crackdown was Dr. Leon Zuckerman, director of a Communist law college at Potsdam. He escaped into West Berlin with his wife and two children a few days ago.

The Jewish chief editor of the Neues Deutschland, East Germany's Daily Worker, has so far been untouched.

HERE you see pictured the Golden Anniversary ROADMASTER—engineered, styled, powered and bodied to be fully worthy of its paragon role in this fiftieth year of Buick building.

A quick listing of simple facts will reveal just cause for celebration.

- ★ It has the world's newest V8 engine. Vertical valves; 12-volt electrical system; 180 pounds lighter; entire engine is so compact, a new, more maneuverable chassis has been built around it.
- ★ It has 188 Fireball horsepower. A new Buick record; engine horsepower per pound increased 40%.
- ★ It has a compression ratio of 8.5 to 1. Highest compression on the American scene today; bettered fuel economy.
- ★ It has a dynamic-flow muffler. For the first time in automotive history, a muffler with zero power loss.
- ★ It has a new Twin-Turbine Dynaflo Drive. Now adds far swifter, quieter, more efficient getaway to infinite smoothness at all speed ranges.
- ★ It has new braking power. Most powerful braking action of any Buick in fifty years; plus the new ease of Power Brakes, optional at extra cost.
- ★ It has a still finer ride. The softest, steadiest, most buoyantly level ride that Buick's advanced engineering has yet produced.

It has, also, wondrous handling ease, with Power Steering as standard equipment. It has superb comfort. It has sumptuous fabrics and tailoring. And its acoustics are so thoroughly mastered that it may well be one of the world's most quiet cars.

But no listing of facts can do true justice to this phenomenal automobile, or to its brilliant brothers, the 1953 SUPERS and SPECIALS.

And no words can really tell you the beauty you see, the comfort you feel, the excitement you experience—when you look at and drive any one of these big, beautiful, bougie Buicks for 1953.

Will you come in and see for yourself that these are, in simple truth, Buick's greatest cars in five brilliant decades?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

The Army announces the award of a scroll and $200 cash to the outstanding graduate of the infantry officers' candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., in memory of the late Robert P. Patterson who was killed in a civil flying accident a year ago. Patterson was a renegade Republican who turned New Deal bureaucrat with a strong sympathy for the Communist treachery. He soldiered courageously in the first war, but nullified any honors which he earned then by his conduct in the Roosevelt-Truman betrayal.

During the second war, Patterson seized an opportunity to make propaganda for the Communists who had massacred civilians, including many nuns and other women in Spain and, furthermore, had enticed many American young men overseas on a pretext that they were joining an army to defend freedom against fascism. Testimony already has been taken by the committee on un-American activities showing that some of the American young men who tried to desert or simply withdraw from of this Soviet Foreign Legion in Spain, because they had learned that they were part of a Communist army, were put to death by firing squads.

Patterson had no excuse to be ignorant of it. Nor could he have been unaware that the recruitment of this Soviet Foreign Legion in New York and the transportation of the troops to Spain from New York were organized violations of American law by the Communist political allies of the Roosevelt administration of which he was a diligent tool. Patterson was a brilliant lawyer who knew not only his law but the facts of life and politics. Nevertheless when he was asked, probably by prearrangement, to comment on the so-called Abraham Lincoln brigade in Spain Patterson said he knew only that those troops were brave fighters against fascism.

On July 3, 1942, Patterson, as under-secretary of war, issued a gratuitous order absolutely vindictive, one of the most dangerous, and, in the secret knowledge of his own department, one of the most notorious Communist spies in the entire "apparatus," and throwing protection around him. On that date a "memorandum" was circulated on war department stationery, addressed to Milo Perkins, the screw-ball swami of the bubble head Wallace aberration known as the board of economic warfare, on the subject of "Nathan Gregory Silvermaster."

Signed "Robert P. Patterson, under-secretary of war," this carte blanche to an enemy spy said: "I have personally made an examination of the case and have discussed it with Major-General G. V. Stromt, G-2. I am fully satisfied that the facts do not show anything derogatory to Mr. Silvermaster's character or loyalty to the United States and that the charges made in the report of June 3 are unfounded."

"I request that a copy of the report of June 3 in your files be returned to the War Department."

Perkins was an eccentric who held oriental rites in the attic of his home in Houston. He eventually sniped out of it.

Silvermaster was first named in public testimony by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, the renegade spy, who said some of the microfilm of secret documents filed from government offices were made in the basement of Silvermaster's home. Whittaker Chambers also named Silvermaster as a spy and it was shown that he was a close associate of Alvin Karpis and John Abt. Abt was one of those maverick Reds who burrowed into the Roosevelt administration without credentials from Felix Frankfurter or Harvard law. Patterson, of course, was a Harvard law man himself, and gave testimony for him.

On Dec. 6, 1950, Alfred Kohlberg, of New York, a prime mover in the American Jewish League against communism, wrote Patterson politely asking him to explain the memorandum to Perkins, knowing of course that it couldn't be done. Patterson failed to answer.

On Jan. 2, a year ago, soon before his death in the crash, Patterson played the last card in his hand, or deck, this tie us an attack on the leading anti-Communist of the hour who had exposed so many of his political comrades in the Red regime.

On that occasion, Patterson, as president of "Freedom House," a cell, nest or hive of political schemers, issued a proclamation demanding the repeal of the ancient, essential privilege of parliamentary immunity. The purpose was to make it impossible for Senator Joe McCarthy and any other senators against treason and enemy espionage to continue their exposes of his treacherous friends.

The proclamation was put out by a synthetic body called "The Public Affairs Committee" of Freedom House in other words a subdivision of a false front, of which Patterson was chairman. It said "Mc-

Minute but Strong
The minute fiber spun by the silkworm in proportion to its size, is the strongest known to mankind. The separate fiber, about the fourth the diameter of the finest human hair, will if twisted into a rope an inch square, sustain a weight of 22 tons.

Carthyism" was the "problem child of our democracy in this time of crisis" and identified "McCarthyism" as "irresponsible statements."

Patterson said "McCarthyism" had done great harm to the nation by demoralizing government employees, driving competent men from the government service and intimidating persons of "unorthodox" or pro-Communist views.

This was consistent with the Communist party line.

As a lawyer, Patterson knew he could not intelligently attack congressional immunity per se so he dilted up his text with typical Communist propaganda, setting up a proposition that "good faith" and "willful libel" were set apart by recognizable, legal differences.

This, of course, was sheer casuistry as Patterson well knew when he put the words together.

The New York Times, reporting the award to the Benning infantry officer yet to be selected, said the award was established by "a group of friends of the former secretary of war and jurist, headed by Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, vice president and general manager of the New York Times."

The Times has opposed the enemies of communism and of the New Deal theology with a zeal as great as McCarthy's to the contrary and with a contempt for truth as deep as that which it imputes to Joe. It has recently been advocating a departure which it calls "interpretive" reporting of events.

There is nothing in the regulations to compel any patriotic, self-respecting officer to submit to this affront to his honor. It is inconceivable that the Army would have the gall to trouble any decent American who should publicly tell Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler to keep his lousy scroll and his lousy $200.

On the contrary, it is conceivable that a non-political department of defense should bring charges against Adler for trying to make ulterior political propaganda at the expense of an officer much better than himself.

ARKANSAS Sportettes

LITTLE ROCK — There is a definite difference between a "candidate" and a "prospect" for the University of Arkansas football coaching job.

A "candidate" would have to be a man who formally applied for the position. A "prospect" would be anyone being considered for it.

The definitions are obvious in the case of George Cole, former Razorback playing star and assistant coach at his alma mater for nearly two decades.

Two days ago this column said that it Bowden Wyatt of Wyoming — currently Arkansas' top choice — becomes unavailable, the job probably will be handed to Cole.

Yesterday another writer picked up the same idea and flipped it into the headlines.

Promptly, Bill Good, the University's public relations man and assistant to President John Caldwell, declared that Cole "has not been a candidate."

There's that word meaning applicant, apparently. For some time ago President Caldwell himself reported that "Cole is on the list."

It was known still earlier that Cole was the only member of the resigned Ollie Douglas' staff whose name was among recommendations made to the University Faculty Committee. Those pre-eliminary screenings, of course, recommended Bear Bryant above everyone.

Cole hasn't applied. Why should he? Members of the faculty committee know the burr-headed George like they know no other football coach. They know, too, he's available if they want him.

There's no reason for George to turn his own head at the risk of openly becoming a competitor to a man who may be his next boss.

Bringing the picture back into

While his Razorback eagles have good average height, Glen Rose has been bemoaning the lack of a real big man to work the backboards. Glen's problem may be eased in future seasons, for Charles Brown, a 6-9 senior at Walnut Ridge, reportedly is headed for the U. of A. Brown averaged 33 points a game in the Arkansas-Jonesboro tourney at Jonesboro last week.

Porks May Play Without Show

FAYETTEVILLE — The Arkansas Razorbacks' third highest scorer may have to sit out their first two Southwest Conference basketball games.

Coach Glen Rose, whose Porks play at Texas A & M Saturday night and at Texas Monday night, reported yesterday that Forward Raymond Shaw had been confined to bed by flu.

Shaw has scored 73 points in eight pre-conference games. He is topped by Gene Lambert's 125 and Walter Kneen's 77.

Wyatt still is top man on the team pole. And there are plenty of reasons to expect that he'll get loose from his Wyoming contract and take the assignment in Fayetteville.

Reliable sources say he has agreed to terms; the job presents an opportunity to step into a fast-track league and he may not have to wait for a formal meeting of the Wyoming Board — set for Feb. 23 — to get a release. These things can be worked out in most cases without getting all the trustees in the same room at the same time.

An Arkansas which has been looking for a month and a half now, couldn't afford to wait until the end of February to land its coach. That's about the time spring practice starts.

Wyatt will visit Fayetteville early next week — seven years later than Athletic Director John Barnhill had hoped. When Barnhill became the Razorbacks' head coach in 1940, he tried unsuccessfully to get Wyatt as one of his assistants.

While his Razorback eagles have good average height, Glen Rose has been bemoaning the lack of a real big man to work the backboards. Glen's problem may be eased in future seasons, for Charles Brown, a 6-9 senior at Walnut Ridge, reportedly is headed for the U. of A. ## Presidents Have No Time to Relax

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 — No president since Herbert Hoover in 1929 has been able to move into the White House and relax. Even Hoover had only a few months of comparative quietude before the Wall Street crash.

Roosevelt inherited the depression. Truman took the job of leading the nation through the Korean War and the cold war with Russia.

Truman in his State of the Union message said he is also leaving Eisenhower a great legacy, a nation which rose from poverty and homelessness in 20 years to its greatest prosperity and world leadership.

That legacy is not without strains. Even it goes the responsibility for maintaining both the prosperity and the leadership, and the courage to respond boldly to new crises which confronted them when they first took office were replaced by brand new ones, of a different kind, before their time in the White House was limited.

It may be the same with Eisenhower. When Roosevelt moved in in 1933 he took to the emergency of the economic disaster which one bold New Deal measure after another, he had his hands full with domestic problems and turned his back on Europe for years.

But as we now know, when the new deal legislation had ended by then — no more successive nation crises, there in the war, Roosevelt assumed for this country world leadership and the domestic needed to sustain it.

When Truman took over, his immediate task was ending the war. Once that was done — his hardest wartime decision was whether to drop the atomic bomb — he faced the gigantic job of getting the country prosperously into peace.

It was a troubled peace from the beginning, as he mentioned in his message, he too had to make bold decisions he never dreamed of when he moved into the White House.

So, while Eisenhower's task at the beginning of his term may appear monumental, they may turn out to be small and simple compared with those facing him four years from now.

Accused American Quits UN Job

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Communist David Weintrub quit his U. N. job last night under the pressure of State Department charges that he is a Communist or under Communist discipline — charges Weintrub has emphatically denied.

The 34-year-old New Yorker, in a letter to Secretary General Trygve Lie, said he resigned to save the United Nations from embarrassment.

Lie, in reply, said he appreciated Weintrub's motives and regretted the "developments" that prompted the resignation. The secretary general expressed appreciation of the outstanding contribution Weintrub made to work of the organization.

Weintrub, 32,000-a-year director of the U. N. Division of Economic Stability and Development, was named in a State Department list of 11 allegedly disloyal Americans employed by the U. N. The list was made public Sunday by the Senate internal security subcommittee.

All-Negro Barony of Blackville Is Thriving, Self-Sufficient 8,000 Acre Cotton Plantation

By RAY STEPHENS

BLACKVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The all-Negro barony of Blackville, a self-sufficient, backwoods agricultural community which operates on a basis of friendly feudalism, likes to go its own way undisturbed by outsiders.

At least, that's the way the 80-year-old patriarch of this 8,000-acre plantation community in Jackson County, Ark., feels about the situation, and the opinions of Blackville are just about the law around here.

This yearning for obscurity on the part of the elderly baron of Blackville results from a belief that publicity is detrimental to his private domain.

Pickens Black Jr., a stocky, soft-spoken Negro who serves as his father's major domo, working boss and public relations connector, explains it this way:

"Everytime we get some publicity, the lower classes, radicals and the criminal element swarm in here."

He summed up his father's position when a photographer suggested that he'd like a picture of the elderly Black.

"Daddy don't like no publicity," said Junior as he flitly rejected the idea.

The younger Black said that soon after a national Negro magazine published a feature article on his father, the family's general store was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of about $40,000.

Pickens Jr., implied that neither he nor his father think the fire was accidental. He wouldn't identify the "radicals" or elaborate on around here.

On this same evening John Wendell was pacing the length of his study, trying to summon ideas for his Commemoration Day sermon. It must, of course, express a redemption of the church to God's service, a redemption of the spirit of those who worshipped in the church. But he wanted to say something which would awaken in these people's hearts a sense of oneness, one with the other, out of which would spring a truer neighborliness. He turned phrases from the Bible in his mind. "Love thy neighbor..." "Do unto others as you would be done by..." and though no better ones could be found, he discarded them. They, these steady churchgoing men and women, would say they did all of that. He tried to phrase something of his own—to reject it as quickly.

He was still terribly disturbed by what Mrs. Donnell had revealed of the gossip in the community, mainly because, through his own stupidity, it involved Susan.

That first Sunday he had preached here—his glance had happened to rest on her for a moment and the rapid look on her face had given him some reassurance that he might be saying something worth listening to. Every Sunday after that, irrespectively, his eyes had sought her out, and the attentiveness of her listening had heartened him as much as though she had stood on his feet and said, "You're good." He had not seen her often outside church—yet it was as often as some of the other younger women, and when he had, she had appeared a little distant. Until the day she had come here to help him.

He realized that she had been in his thoughts almost constantly since that day. In his heart? He dared not ask himself that. He was in no position to fall in love—he had to make good in his job here, first.

He sat down at the desk, drew a pad to him, began to write on it. The words ran steadily up and down the pad but he wrote no words. (To be continued)

Dierks Bank Shortage Back Before Jury

Such certainly is not the case here, where everybody from the older Black to the children work in the fields or on one of the other Black projects.

Black Jr., despite his 60 admitted years, is foreman of the family's cotton gin.

Blackville, named for the owner of this vast farming enterprise, is a tiny settlement of one general store, owned by Black, a church, a school and a few scattered homes.

The settlement serves 400 persons who enter live on small farms surrounded by Black territory, rent from the planter or farm for Black or shares.

Black first came to Arkansas from Alabama in 1875 — when he still was in his early teens. He won't say how he acquired his vast holdings, but he once owned 10,000 acres of the rich delta farm land.

In Newport, the county seat, there is a generally accepted story that Black first operated his farm as a continuing project. All the people who lived on his land put the product of their labor into a common pool, and shared from a common pot.

Black today refuses to even discuss this unshared experience, neither confirming nor denying it. But the farm doesn't operate on anything remotely resembling that sort of procedure today.

Black has sold out about 2,000 acres of his land over a period of time to deserving tenants. This land, for the most part, was purchased out in small farms, and the former tenants haven't divorced themselves from the community in any manner.

Today, Black pattern his varied operations along the same lines employed on most large Southern plantations. The general store, which is the center of practically all Blackville activity, supplies all families which live on or near his land with everything from clothing to gasoline and plain and fancy groceries. The store even has a working agreement with a dry cleaner in nearby Newport.

In addition to the cottonmill to which the elder Black devotes most of his time, the family owns the only sawmill and the only grain elevator in the area.

The Blacks specialize in cotton as a cash crop, but recently under the direction of Pickens Jr., a few acres have been set aside for rice. The family also is going in for livestock, and they're growing their own feed.

In all, the Blacks operate a complete plantation unit, furnishing their tenants with employment, and selling them the necessities of life.

A good example of how the community works toward the common good is the new school that is being built.

Attention was focused on the tiny hamlet when its residents decided to build the school with a minimum of outside help. It was needed badly to replace an ancient frame building which no longer could serve the rapidly expanding student body.

The elder Black promptly donated nearly seven acres for a site, and the residents started to work 18 months ago without benefit of skilled labor or professional advice. They had a floor plan, three good carpenters and a brick mason — the only paid labor involved.

A total of $10,000 was borrowed by the Negro community from Arkansas' revolving loan fund, a loan based on the assessed valuation of the school district — composed mostly of Black's holdings.

The school's eight classrooms are nearly complete, but principal E. E. Kemerson, estimates it will be another 18 months before the entire structure is ready for occupancy.

Total construction cost is estimated at $35,000, and the building will be valued at about $150,000 when complete.

The decision to build the school came when the Blackville School District was consolidated with the Newport district, 17 miles to the east. Blackville residents didn't like the idea of their children traveling to Newport to attend school, especially in view of the fact that the two back country roads leading to Blackville often are made impassable by inclement weather.

Most of the children pitch in during fall cotton picking time, and their school days should be scheduled to fit in with the harvest time.

Pickens Jr., gave another reason for the parents' objections to school in Newport: "When the children have to go away to school, they either quit or don't come back home."

While Pickens Jr., has stayed on his father's plantation as the working boss, two other sons have sought their future away from the farm. One of them is Dr. W. B. Black, a Newport physician. A married daughter also lives in Blackville.

Cold Weather Hits Much Midwest

By United Press

Temperatures rose across the nation's midsection today, but the mercury stayed low enough to turn highways into ribbons of ice from freezing rain and drizzle.

Grantsburg, Wis., which had shivered in 26 below zero for two nights in a row, boasted a "pleasant" 14 above at midnight last night. And the mercury climbed during the early morning in most parts of the Midwest.

Chicago, with a 16 reading yesterday morning, had 30 at 4 a. m. today, a three-degree rise from the midnight reading.

The super-cooled rain droplets, which froze as they splashed against highways, covered an extensive area in the central Mississippi valley and north of the Ohio River valley.

Light snow drifted gently down on eastern North Dakota and northwest Minnesota. It was to move into the northern Great Lakes region during the day.

New York State, New Jersey and Connecticut had light snow this morning, which became mixed with rain.

Pennsylvania had a duke's mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain with a high of about 28.

The Pacific Northwest got its share of rain and drizzle. California shared the rain drops for a report of yesterday's showers that dumped 61 of an inch on Los Angeles.

The southeast and southern Texas had a fine weather menu with warm gulf breezes flowing as far north as an east-west line across the Ohio valley.

Miami, Fla., was the nation's warmest spot at midnight with a balmy 73. Atlanta, Ga., had 57. The doleful spot, other than wind-ripped mountain tops, was Caribou, Me., with one below at midnight.

Brownsville, Tex., was in the upper 60s.

VALPARAISO, Chile (AP) — Another victim of Valparaiso's New Year's Day explosion died yesterday, raising the death toll to 52. About 400 persons were injured in the blast in a highway department warehouse.

during fall cotton picking time, and their school days should be scheduled to fit in with the harvest time.

Pickens Jr., gave another reason for the parents' objections to school in Newport: "When the children have to go away to school, they either quit or don't come back home."

While Pickens Jr., has stayed on his father's plantation as the working boss, two other sons have sought their future away from the farm. One of them is Dr. W. B. Black, a Newport physician. A married daughter also lives in Blackville.

Oldsmobile Styling Is Changed

Completely new in frontal appearance and offering other styling changes inside and out as well as many mechanical advances, the 1953 Oldsmobile models are being introduced Friday, January 9, by Oldsmobile dealers throughout the country and at GIB Lewis Auto Sales in Hope. Among the important improvements in the new models, according to J. P. Wolfram, Oldsmobile general manager and vice president of General Motors, are further increases in efficiency of the "Rocket" engine, resulting in increased fuel economy and performance; compression ratio raised to 10 to 1, which also boosts the horsepower; a more efficient 12-volt ignition system; Frigidaire car conditioning that cools the car interior in the warmest weather; and "Pedal-Ease" power brakes to provide faster, safer stops.

The Frigidaire conditioning and power brakes are optional equipment available at extra cost. Two popular items first introduced in 1952, GM power steering and the Autronic-Eye automatic headlight dimmer, also are offered again as optional extras. Hydra-Matic Super Drive, the pioneer and most prevalent of automatic transmissions, also is on the optional list. Direct-Shift signals are standard equipment on all 1953 series.

Three series of Oldsmobile cars are presented in 1953. The Classic "88" series has been extended to 41 inches in length and is built in three body styles — the four-door sedan, Holiday coupe and convertible coupe. Four body styles are available in the popular Super "88" series — four-door sedan, two-door sedan, Holiday coupe and convertible coupe. Both the "88" and Super "88" are powered by a 148-horsepower "Rocket" engine. The economically priced Deluxe "88" series has two body types — two-door sedan and four-door sedan — and is powered by a 140-hp. version of the "Rocket" engine. Wheelbase is 124 inches for the "88" series and 126 inches for the two "88" series.

Governor Picks Secretary

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A 44-year-old former Sebastian County representative, John H. Gowin, Jr., of Woodward, will serve as Gov. Cherry's legislative secretary. The 1953 General Assembly, Gov. Cherry announced the appointment yesterday. Gowin, an insurance broker, has an office at P. O. Box 100, Little Rock.

Legislative secretary often acts as governor's representative in dealing with the General Assembly.

New Styling, Power in Oldsmobile Super "88"

Oldsmobile's Super "88" four-door sedan for 1953 features a restyled front and rear end, new chrome trim on the rear quarter panels and fenders and a more powerful 148-hp. "Rocket" engine with 8 to 1 compression ratio. Interior beauty is enhanced by a choice of three color combinations and there is a handsome new instrument panel. GM power steering, Frigidaire car conditioning, "Pedal-Ease" power brakes and the Autronic-Eye are among the optional accessories available at extra cost.

West Germany Won't Need Dollar Aid

By BRACK CURRY.

BONN, Germany (AP) — Because of its spectacular economic recovery, West Germany may need little if any direct American dollar aid this year, U. S. sources said today.

This is good news for President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's planners who are surveying the continuance of America's foreign aid program.

An exception is made for Russia-encircled West Berlin, which has not kept pace with Western recovery and which will require U. S. financial aid indefinitely.

American sources said there was no intention of cutting off aid to the federal republic totally and abruptly. But direct aid has already been declining and a policy has been reached where new methods can be considered. The aim will be to keep the German economic machine going at its present high clip to prevent a drop in the living standards. Provision will also be made for aid for necessary quality imports from the dollar area which can not be obtained elsewhere.

It is also planned to extend substantial aid when the Germans start rearming in the Western defense system. Until then, it is believed, West Germany can stand on its own feet because its economic recovery is so rapid.

PSC Grants Bus Franchises

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Coy Anthony of Vilnius and T. D. Stapleton of Conway were granted franchises by the Arkansas Public Service Commission yesterday to provide bus service to the Jacksonville bomber base.

Stapleton will operate on Highway 64 under his franchise and Anthony will pick up construction workers and employees on Highway 67.

Although Lake Tanganyika in Africa is 2,530 feet above sea level at the surface, it is 2,172 feet below sea level at the bottom in the deepest part.

Only is considered the soundest in Europe after Belgium and Switzerland.

When the Germans join the Western defense setup they will receive arms assistance from the U. S. This already has been promised. The best official calculation, however, is that even then they may not need direct dollar assistance.

Despite Germany's spectacular economic comeback, the view here is that there should be no formal cutoff of economic help. Due to Germany's exposed position in the cold war, the U. S. retains a keen interest in helping to maintain the economic stability of 48 million West Germans. The outlook, however, is that more strings will be attached to any future aid.

The U. S. has poured $1.5 billion dollars into West Germany since 1945 to help this defeated country.

Psychiatrist Says Woman Drug Addict

By WENDELL MERICK

TOKYO, (UP) — The prosecution today rested its case against Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith for the knife murder of her husband after an Army psychiatrist testified she had "suicidal and homicidal manifestations" and she was a drug addict.

His testimony followed that of an Army nurse who revealed, for the first time, that Col. Aubrey D. Smith was asleep in one twin bed in their bedroom when Mrs. Smith plunged a 13-inch knife into his right side, fatally wounding him.

Lt. Col. Arthur Hession, president of the psychiatric board which determined Mrs. Smith was capable of standing trial, said Smith indirectly was partly responsible for his own death.

He said Mrs. Smith was admitted to Tokyo Army Hospital on April 30, 1952, for "simple drunkenness and emotional instability."

Yet Smith "begged" him to permit Mrs. Smith to remain in Tokyo, the Army doctor testified, after he had decided to order Mrs. Smith, mother of two children and daughter of famed World War II General Walter Krueger, returned to the United States.

However, two Army nurses testified for the prosecution that Mrs. Smith told them she killed her husband because he planned to send her back to the United States because she was "a detriment to his profession."

When the prosecution finished its case, Defense Counsel Lt. Col. Howard S. Lewis immediately requested dismissal of the charge of premeditated murder against Mrs. Smith on the grounds the prosecution had "failed utterly" to prove it.

His motion was denied. The defense will begin its case Thursday morning.

The prosecution, defending its charges of premeditated murder, told the court it had proved:

Two weeks before the stabbing Mrs. Smith had threatened to kill her husband, that she had made damaging admissions that she was glad she stabbed him, wished the knife had pierced his heart, and that she waited until he was asleep before thrusting the blade into his side.

Despite Hession's testimony that Smith had "begged" him to keep Mrs. Smith in Tokyo, the only clue to a motive for the knife slaying to come to light thus far was the statement of two nurses that Mrs. Smith said she killed her husband because he was sending her back home.

Nurse Capt. Sophia Slavak, who cared for the defendant while she was in a guarded room of the hospital prison ward, said Mrs. Smith "mentioned the fact that she was being shanghaied because of her action and behavior."

"Then," the nurse testified, "she would go on, she would say she was glad she did it."

Capt. Slavak quoted Mrs. Smith as saying:

"I waited for my husband to go to sleep. I stabbed him. It galls me to think I didn't do it on the other side (the heart side)."

The nurse testified that Mrs. Smith had had "words" with her husband after he had told her to be prepared to leave for the United States.

Another nurse, Capt. Helen Hunenanski, said Mrs. Smith's half hysterical rambling in the barred and guarded hospital room included a remark that "she would kill him first and herself afterwards" if she had to return to the United States alone.

"She talked like a phonograph machine wound up," Capt. Hunenanski testified. "I am Mrs. Smith," she said. "I have stabbed my husband with a ten-inch Japanese knife. He was asleep when I did it. She would cry. She would laugh. She tried to get out of bed."

Ancient Sumerians, Babylonians and Assyrians worshipped a god called Tammuz who died and was resurrected annually with the vernal equinox.

Committee May Change on ABC Stand

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative Council today received a recommendation from a special committee of its own members that it back down from a decision to cut off funds for the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The Council several weeks ago refused to approve the proposed biennial appropriation for the Board, set up by the 1951 Legislature to regulate the liquor and beer industries in Arkansas.

If the Legislature should go along on that, result would be abolition of the Board.

Then the Council assigned a committee to study the situation and suggest how liquor regulation should be handled.

The committee reached its decision last night after a sparsely-attended public meeting. Keep the present system.

The committee, of which Sen. Lee Reeves of Warren is chairman, decided to pass back to the full Council the question of how many investigators should be appropriated for. There were contentions from several members that the present 20 are too many, and counter-arguments from others that 40 could be used to advantage.

Most of the criticism, however, was on the score that "political influence" figured on the Board, which reviews Executive Director George Callahan's decisions on approval or rejection of liquor and beer permits.

In any case, the present Board members aren't likely to remain long. They haven't been approved by the Senate, as required by law, and as a result all Gov.-elect Francis Cherry will have to do to name his own men is to submit their names rather than those of the present appointees of Gov. McMahon.

Thomas Harper of Ft. Smith is Board chairman, B. G. Dickey of Earle is a member, and J. R. Fontaine of Clarksville was until his term expired Dec. 15, 1952.

Cherry was quoted as favoring retention of the present system.

Ike Not Happy With Queries From Newsmen

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Eisenhower is reported to be thinking of abolishing White House news conferences and, instead, making reports to the nation periodically on radio and TV.

Since his return to this country last June to seek the presidency Eisenhower hasn't shown much enthusiasm for news conferences. He held only a few up to election day and only a limited one in Korea since then.

And even at the news conferences he didn't always seem happy under the quizzing. He's not an easy man to cover at a conference. He talks fast and has a habit of leaving sentences unfinished.

A news conference, of course, is a good place for a President to put his foot in his mouth — as President Truman demonstrated several times — if he gives the wrong answer or says something he shouldn't.

But when facing a mob of newsmen firing questions, some of them loaded, a president can always say "I don't know" when he doesn't have the answer or "No comment" when he doesn't want to give it.

But White House news conferences, now a Washington institution, have enabled successive presidents to pump out to the public quickly answers to some of the most interesting and pressing problems of the day.

In doing so, they provided presidents with a kind of immediate contact with the public. They have been one of the best illustrations that this is a democratic society.

For these conferences were a constant reminder to presidents that they, in spite of their exalted position, were servants of the public who had a continuing interest in what was going on, and why, and how.

Eisenhower could make mistakes, embarrassing for himself and maybe the United States, at how things work.
